2024 Community Easter Party

The Easter Bunny making a visit

Let the feast begin

Determined to crossing the finish line

Halfway there for Zayden Crawford

Lots of goodies in the Easter baskets

by Amber Haseman

The Forest County Potawatomi Community gathered at the Potawatomi Community Center for the annual Easter party. The festivities began at 12 p.m. on March 29, 2024, with a traditional feast featuring sliced turkey, potatoes and gravy, wild rice casserole, dinner rolls, plenty of delicious desserts and refreshments.

Upon arrival, guests had the opportunity to sign up their children for the bike and Easter basket raffles. Raffle buckets were available to each age group including boys and girls 0-3, 4-6, 7-10, 11-13, and 14-17 years. There was a bounce house and inflatable course set up in the gym for the children to burn off some energy before, during and after the events' activities.

After the feast, each age group gathered in the turf fieldhouse for their Easter egg hunt. The children ran with excitement trying to find all the eggs before the others. While the children were preoccupied with games, the Easter bunny stopped by for a visit and took pictures with all the kids. Candy bags were provided to each child after their visit.

Following the Easter egg hunt, the next game was an Egg and Spoon

Race. Each age group had a chance to participate, including the adults. No matter the age, it was a true testament of who could reach the finish line first without dropping their egg. They continued with a couple more games including Potato Sack and Three-Legged races.

The fun didn't stop there. Everyone joined in the cafeteria for a friendly, or not so friendly, game of egg smash. During each round, three participants joined the chairs in front of the audience, grabbed an egg from the bucket, held it over their head, and smashed it in hopes of not breaking it on their head. Some participants weren't so lucky. In fact, Chairman Crawford might've been one of the unlucky ones. Despite the mess it caused, it was an "eggcellent" time for all who participated and watched.

To conclude the Easter festivities, winners were drawn for the bike and Easter basket raffles. The winners excitedly went up to get their prizes. It was an enjoyable time for all ages. A much-needed time of gathering, coming together as one, a time to feast, enjoy some family fun, sharing laughter and smiles, and making memories to share with generations to come.

Giggling their way to the finish line

Last, but not least, for Chairman Crawford in the potato sack race

The adults competing in the Spoon and Egg Race

All smiles for her brand-new tricycle

by Amber Haseman

Newly-appointed Elder Board Committee Member Samuel Alloway was sworn in March 27, 2024, at 9 a.m. in the tribal court. This is the first time Alloway has been on the Elder Board Committee. The purpose and duties of the board include the following:

1. Advocate for the interests and concerns of tribal elders and adults with disabilities in the FCPC Elderly Department service area.
2. Provide guidance to the FCPC Elderly Department on matters relating to programs that affect the well-being of older adults, including supportive socials.
3. Coordinate and assist the FCPC Elderly Department in promoting and expanding services that are appropriate, accessible, and acceptable to tribal elders.

4. Identify people and resources that can assist the Elderly Department in furthering its mission.

5. Understand the tribal grievance and appeals process concerning aging services.

6. Provide guidance to the FCPC Elderly Department regarding the food preferences of participants, hours and locations of operations, and the accessibility of the center for disabled or handicapped participants.

7. Lastly, conduct a yearly on-site review of the Senior Center.

Let's send a big congratulations to Alloway on his newly appointed roll in the FCP community.

FCP Up & Coming

by Amber Haseman

Dollars & Senses Course: This course will be held on Tuesdays from 5-7 p.m. on the remaining dates: April 16, 23, 30 and May 7, 2024. Located at the Potawatomi Community Center, the course is free to FCP tribal members, spouses, significant others, and descendants ages 15 and up. Food and childcare will be available for class participants. Register now at <https://forms.office.com/r/0ij55E4UBQ>. Questions? Contact Manny Johnson II at (715) 889-0636 or manny.johnson@fcp-nsn.gov.

After School Club: LNR is hosting an After School Club for grades first through fifth to learn about different hands-on experiments that can be created and conducted indoors. Learn and explore the world of S.T.E.M. The club will be held at the Potawatomi Community Center on select Mondays: April 15, 22, and 29. It is open to all and free with your community center membership. Please register at PotawatomiCC.recdesk.com.

Mother Earth Day: LNR is hosting an event for Mother Earth Day April 17, 2024, from 1-5 p.m. at the Bodwewadmi Ktëgan (Potawatomi Farm.) The event is open to FCP tribal members, families, and descendants. Activities will include decorating pots and planting native plants, creating your own bird feeders and milk jug green houses, farm tours, and a chance to win door prizes.

Senior Spotlight: Attention all FCP High School Seniors. We want to honor you by including you into the May 1, May 15, and June 1, 2024 Potawatomi Times issues. Please refer to the FCP Senior Spotlight ad, scan the QR code to complete a questionnaire and upload your photo, or contact us at (715) 478-7437 or at times@fcp-nsn.gov for a paper form. The newspaper and banner deadline is May 1, 2024.

Changemaker Award

by Amber Haseman

The Great Lakes Intertribal Food Coalition (GLIFC) received the 2024 Marbleseed Changemaker of the year award. The GLIFC received the award for strengthening the intertribal food system by supplying Tribal Elder Food Boxes to 11 federally recognized tribes in Wisconsin.

The 35th Annual Marbleseed Conference was held in Lacrosse, Wis. on Feb. 23, 2024, and recognized these efforts. The Tribal Elder Food Box Program (TEFBP) began in 2021 and delivered a total of 10,800 boxes within three tribal communities including the Oneida Nation, Red Cliff Band of Lake Superior Chippewa, and the Menominee Tribe of Wisconsin.

The goals of the program are to provide nutritious and culturally-related foods to tribal elders as well as supporting Indigenous, local, and small-scale farmers and food producers. In 2023, the program purchased food from a total of 23 Indigenous food producers and 32 non-indigenous food producers. Products include but are not limited to maple syrup and sugar, tea blends, elk, venison, and vegetables.

As the program grew, the network of tribes, agencies and food banks also grew. It takes several agencies and organizations to make the TEFBP work. The program would not be possible without all its dedicated partners; two of which are local including the Sokaogon Chippewa Community of Mole Lake and the Forest County Potawatomi Community.

On behalf of the Bodwewadmi Ktëgan (Potawatomi Farm) and the Potawatomi Community, Farm Manager David Cronauer attended the conference and represented the tribe and their Elder Food Box Program.

Pressure Canning Meat

Everyone canning his/her sloppy joe mix

by Amber Haseman

During last month's canning class, those who attended learned how to pressure can meat. The class was held at Bodwéwadmi Ktëgan (Potawatomi Farm) March 19, 2024, at 5:30 p.m. by Food Preservation and Production Specialist Wenona Siggelkow and Sustainable Food Services Manager Nicole Filiatreault.

To save time, Siggelkow cut up the beef stew meat and ground up the bison meat prior to class. Each of the students started with cutting up raw onions to add into the meat mixture. Starting with sloppy joes, the ground bison was added into a pot to cook. In the meantime, others began preparing the sauce mix, combining a variety of spices and ketchup to create the perfect mixture. Once ready, the sauce was added into the pot along with onions and peppers to give the meat extra flavor.

Once the mixture was ready, the class began filling their jars and sealing them to perfection. Each of the jars were carefully placed into the pressure cooker. While that was heating, the class moved onto canning the stew meat. They did so by adding onions to the bottom of the jar, followed with raw meat, onion, raw meat, and onion until the jar was full. Once all the air bubbles were removed, they screwed on the lids and added the jars to a second pressure canner.

Siggelkow handed out folders to the new members of the class as well as previous members, providing new handouts and additional ones from previous canning classes. She provided pamphlets from the Wisconsin Safe Food Preservation Series featuring canning salsa, vegetables, and meat – wild game, poultry, and fish safely. The class finished up the evening cleaning their work areas and a much-needed snack from the taco bar.

While the farm transitions from winter to spring, and from spring to summer, they will be taking a short break from their canning classes in preparation for their Farm to Table classes. Be sure to stay tuned for their upcoming classes.

Wisconsin Waterfowl Assoc. Working to Improve and Restore Public Lands with New Initiative

submitted by Wisconsin Waterfowl Association

Wisconsin has 1.4 million acres of public land available for hunting and recreation, including some of the best waterfowl habitat in the country. But there are many parts of our public lands that are unproductive and need significant restoration work.

To help that effort, in 2023 the Wisconsin Waterfowl Association (WWA) hired two new restoration ecologists to improve public lands in Wisconsin.

These ecologists to work exclusively on public lands in Wisconsin to help enhance habitat and restore wetlands that are crucial to healthy waterfowl populations.

“By dedicating staff to develop plans to improve these public lands we can not only ensure that Wisconsin can continue to maintain a healthy waterfowl population, but also help our waterfowl hunters see more success when out on public lands,” said WWA Executive Director Bruce Ross.

Working in partnership with the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources (DNR), WWA's Public Land Ecologists are identifying potentially restorable wetlands and developing restoration plans on DNR managed properties. They are also helping expand wild rice beds throughout the state, particularly in the ceded territories.

The program is a multi-year partnership with the Wisconsin DNR. Additional funding to support the positions is coming from the Fund for Lake Michigan, the James E. Dutton Foundation, the Wisconsin Bird Fund (A Legacy Fund of the Society of the of Tympanuchus Cupido Pinnatus), and proceeds from the annual Waterfowl Hunters Expo.

WWA's ecologists completed considerable up-front project identification and evaluation in 2023, setting the stage for breaking ground on wetland restorations in 2024. To date, more than 150 public properties have undergone desktop reviews, with 11 properties under further consideration for restoration. Three other projects are in the planning and design process, and one is moving forward through permitting.

Construction on the first project, restoring 16 acres of wetlands at the Navarino Wildlife Area in Shawano County, is expected to begin this year. Additional potential projects totaling nearly 225 acres of wetland restoration at the Brooklyn Wildlife Area (Dane County), Peter Helland Wildlife Area (Columbia County) and Evansville Wildlife Area (Rock County) are in the planning and design process.

Wisconsin has lost approximately 50 percent of our wetlands due to drainage, agriculture, development, and incompatible land use practices. The restoration of hydrology in these wetlands will improve and increase habitats for waterfowl and other species of wildlife, improve retention of precipitation to prevent flooding in communities, filter groundwater, reduce runoff and erosion, and improve hunting and other recreational experiences.

The public lands initiative also worked to expand wild rice beds throughout the Ceded Territory in northern Wisconsin. Natural wild rice production in Wisconsin is on a long-term decline, and the restoration or establishment of wild rice in suitable state waters will help create more food sources and better covers for wildlife. WWA volunteers collected 230 pounds of wild rice and purchased another 1,500 pounds in 2023 – all of it seeded on priority waters.

“For 40 years, the WWA has been working to create better habitat, educate and advocate for waterfowl hunters here in Wisconsin. We are excited to expand our efforts to increase habitat for wildlife and provide an even better experience for hunters in Wisconsin,” said Ross.

The Wisconsin Waterfowl Association is a state-based, non-profit conservation organization dedicated to the conservation of Wisconsin's waterfowl and wetland resources. Since 1984, WWA has worked to restore critical habitat in Wisconsin, educate the next generation of waterfowl hunters, and advocate for policies that protect Wisconsin's resources and the rights of citizens to hunt.
