8th Annual Sobriety Powwow

Ring in the new year

by Communications Account Coordinator Tesia Shepard

For some, New Year's Eve is synonymous with partying, complete with alcohol and festive party favors. However, the Forest County Potawatomi Community embraces a different approach to ringing in the New Year by celebrating the power of sobriety. On the frigid night of Dec. 31, 2025, attendees gathered at the Potawatomi Community Center for the 8th Annual New Year's Eve Sobriety Powwow.

Vendors set up displays showcasing handcrafted beadwork, ribbon skirts, shirts, and various other items, eager to share their creations. The evening commenced with a feast at 5 p.m., allowing guests to socialize over a meal of Indian Tacos while anticipating the Grand Entry at 7 p.m. Led by Veterans Color Guard, the Grand Entry featured this year's head dancers, Donna VanZile and Bambi Shepard, along with royalty and participating dancers to kick off the night's festivities. MC Jeff Keeble Sr. shared his personal journey of sobriety and recovery, encouraging everyone present to commit to the path of sobriety and to help heal the community.

Many meaningful conversations emerged among those individuals committed to recovery and maintaining sobriety. Community Prevention Coordinator Jorge Cisneros Sr. shared the harsh realities he personally faced and his daily dedication to self-improvement. He emphasized, "Culture is prevention and always will be prevention," encouraging everyone in attendance to persist in the efforts they have made so far.

The FCP Behavioral Health Department provided prevention kits, Narcan, recovery resources, and offered an impaired driving demonstration for participants. Prevention & Recovery Program Director Angela Jacobson and Recovery Coach Consuela Alloway, presented sobriety coins and recognized those celebrating their sober milestones. Numerous individuals shared their personal stories, highlighting their journeys toward achieving years, months, days, or even hours of sobriety.

The evening's entertainment featured various spot dances, giving participants the opportunity to win a cozy blanket or cash prizes by ending in designated spots set by arena director Richard Gougé. All the little ones who joined the Tiny Tot Special received a teddy bear, while those who ranked in the Teens, Juniors, and Elders Specials were awarded cash prizes. An opportunity for the men to showcase their finest hand drum performances occurred during the hand drum contest, which the judges recognized four winners.

This year introduced a unique twist with the "potato dance," which evolved into a creative awareness initiative using boxes of Narcan in place of potatoes. Participants paired up and balanced a box of Narcan between their foreheads, engaging in various tasks directed by the MC while continuing to dance to the rhythm of the drums, all without touching one another.

The "Potato Dance" using Narcan

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor,

I'm writing from Thompson Falls, Mont., to give a "Big Salute" to Sidney Daniels and Nolan Milham for their work and execution of an education powwow for the Wabeno School students and faculty. This kind of event should happen at schools on, or adjacent to, tribal reservations across Indian Country. Well done!

I lived with my grandfather Billie Keshick and my mother Clara Keshick five miles from Soperton on County C Road. The only traditional dance I remember was from the early 1940s (I'm 90 years old) — a ceremonial dance held in the area between Blackwell Road and County C for a family member who was ill at the Frank Ka Ka home.

Grandpa Keshick put on his Sunday best clothes with the beaded arm bands and leg bands. He packed his drum, his favorite blanket and other traditional items. We packed some food, hitched up the horses to the wagon and drove through the woods on old logging trails to the Frank Ka Ka residence.

Tribal members brought food. Men helped build an arbor with tree branches and put a railing that was used to hang blankets so there was privacy to the ceremonies inside. After hours of ceremonies, food was served and the event was over.

I also got my tribal nickname of "beans" at this gathering because I stole an opened can of pork and beans from the serving table for myself and got caught eating most of it behind a building where I had hid. Non-Indians called me "Lil' Bill".

A year or so later, the sheriff came to our house and told my grandfather that any further gatherings of tribal people were prohibited by law. Thereafter, the only tribal gatherings were those put on by the missionaries. They fed us, too, at their little churches.

I also wish to thank the tribe for sponsoring the Potawatomi Times. I have read (it) over the years about the development of community programs and cultural events that have educated and created a cohesive surge of tribal human development. Keep spreading the news! It's the only way we tribal urban people can keep up.

Upon arrival at the Powwow, attendees received two tickets — one blue and one white —for door prizes. Throughout the evening, white tickets were drawn for the chance to win unique prizes gifted by the Powwow Committee, which included various electronics, mini kitchen appliances, cookware, blenders, tumblers, outdoor accessories, and so much more! The grand prize, drawn from the blue tickets, was awarded to the lucky Shawn Milligan, who walked away with a complete ice fishing set ready to tackle the upcoming fisheries this winter including an ice auger, camo sled, tip-up, and ice fishing supplies.

As the evening came to a close, a traveling song to ensure safe journeys home was presented. The Sobriety Powwow once again filled the night with laughter, smiles, and gratitude for all that they have achieved, creating sober memories to cherish. Looking back on the past year, it's essential to celebrate its conclusion while reflecting on the lessons learned. Moving forward, embrace the new year with hope for gatherings, connections, teachings, and all that the future holds. This night offered the community a chance to come together, reflecting on struggles and resilience. Continue to support each other in this journey, remembering that we can overcome any challenge with the strength of our collective community.

Pam Clark Retires

submitted by FCP Health Division

After 7 years and 10 months of dedicated service at Caring Place—and an incredible 23 years as a CNA — we celebrate Pam Clark and the compassion, commitment, and care she has shared with our residents and team.

Clark’s work has touched countless lives. Her steady presence, kind heart, and willingness to go above and beyond truly reflect the spirit of caring for our elders.

In recognition of her service, Alvin W. and Norman T. personally presented Pam with a tribally-inspired blanket from Bodwéwadmi Ktëgan (Potawatomi Farm), a meaningful symbol of gratitude, respect, and warmth as she marks this milestone.

While Clark is officially celebrating her retirement, we are grateful that she will continue with us part-time at Caring Place, allowing our residents and staff to keep benefiting from her experience and kindness.

Please join us in congratulating Clark on her retirement and thanking her for the many years of care she has given — and continues to give — to our community.

January Veggie of the Month: Broccoli

submitted by Community Health Dietitian Sarah Hoffman

Nutrition Fun Facts

- Broccoli is in peak season during the winter and spring. It is, however, typically available fresh year-round and can also be purchased frozen.
- A good broccoli floret should have a green color and no odor. It can be safely stored in the refrigerator for up to 5 days.
- Broccoli can be eaten raw, or it can be steamed, sauteed, roasted or grilled.
- Broccoli is a common ingredient to be used in stir fry, soups, omelets, casseroles and much more.

- Broccoli was first grown in Italy, where it was referred to as Italian asparagus.
- Broccoli is packed with nutrients. It is especially high in potassium, fiber and vitamin C.
- In one cup of raw broccoli, there are about 30 calories, 2 grams of fiber,

230 mg of potassium, and 70mg of vitamin C.

For more information on nutrition topics, please contact Sarah Hoffman, Community Health Dietitian at 715-478-4355.

Recipe: Pesto Chicken with Broccoli

Ingredients:

- 4 chicken breasts
- 1/2 cup pesto
- 4 cups broccoli florets
- 1.5 Tablespoons olive oil
- 1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 3/4 cup shredded mozzarella cheese

Directions:

1. Preheat oven to 425 degrees.
2. Cut chicken breasts horizontally to create 8 thin cutlets.
3. Line a baking sheet with parchment paper. Arrange chicken on one half of the baking sheet and top each cutlet with pesto.
4. On the other half of the baking sheet, arrange the broccoli in a single layer. Top broccoli with olive oil, garlic powder and salt.
5. Bake the chicken and broccoli for 15 minutes.
6. Remove from the oven. Sprinkle mozzarella over each cutlet and bake for an additional 5 minutes, or until chicken is cooked through.

30 Children's Charities Win Big During Heart of Canal Street Finale

Organizations throughout Southeast Wisconsin to share more than $700,000

submitted by PCH PR Manager Jay Saunders, Sr.

Milwaukee, Wis. (Dec. 2025) – Big smiles and big checks for local children’s charities. Thirty organizations heard their names called as part of the 31st Heart of Canal Street finale celebration at Potawatomi Casino Hotel (PCH).

This year’s Heart of Canal Street campaign raised $722,380, meaning each charity selected during the event will receive $24,079 to support their vitally important children’s programming over the next year.

This year, 26 of the organizations were selected randomly during the finale, four media outlets worked with a partner charity, and the remaining charity was selected by a Potawatomi team member through a “What Does Heart of Canal Street Mean to Me” essay contest.

Here are the 2026 winners (listed alphabetically):

- Advocates of Ozaukee
- All Hands Boatworks
- Arts at Large
- Bicycle Federation of Wisconsin
- Big Brothers and Big Sisters of Metro Milwaukee – Presented by Clear Channel Outdoor
- Blue Lotus Center
- Centers for Independence – Presented by Milwaukee Media Group
- Chosen Inc. of Wisconsin
- Ex Fabula
- Family Promise of Waukesha County
- FRIENDS, Inc.
- Future Urban Leaders
- Gerald L. Ignace Indian Health

Center

- Harry & Rose Samson Family Jewish Community Center
- Healing Hearts of Southeast Wisconsin
- Hope House of Milwaukee
- I Have a Dream Foundation of Milwaukee
- Junior Achievement of Wisconsin – Presented by FOX 6
- La Causa, Inc.
- Latino Arts, Inc.
- Little Warrior Foundation – Potawatomi Casino Hotel Team Member Selection
- Milwaukee Baseball Club
- Milwaukee Diaper Mission – Presented by CBS 58
- Old World Wisconsin Foundation
- Outreach Community Health Centers
- Pets Helping People
- Professional Firefighters of Wisconsin Charitable Foundation
- REDgen
- Riveredge Nature Center
- Wisconsin Community Services

Heart of Canal Street is PCH’s signature charity giving program. In 1994, donations totaled about $100,000 split between a handful of charities. In the 30 years since, nearly 400 local organizations have benefited from a fundraising total now topping $23 million.
